

home
departments
features
columns
archives
subscribe
newsletter
reprints

search site

Advanced Search

Top 10 New Years' Resolutions You Can Make for Your Business

Daily Content: Web Exclusive

Dece

Published January 16, 2001

1. Develop a business plan or strategic plan. You won't always get where you're going unless you know where you want to be and let your employees know as well.
2. Constantly promote your business. You can't execute one marketing effort each year and expect your business to grow. Plan marketing efforts quarterly or even monthly and plan time for follow through and tracking of results.
3. Create action plans for each person in your organization. Make sure every employee knows how his or her job relates to the company's overall vision, and that each has individual objectives and goals with measurable standards and timetables.
4. Survey your employees. Sometimes the biggest employee dissatisfactions are the easiest to fix. Know what changes your employees would like to make in their work lives and do your best to increase their quality of work life (and usually their productivity as well).
5. Survey your customers and suppliers. Maybe the way you are doing business is costing you relationships with suppliers and customers. Know what bugs them and make it easy to do business with your company.
6. Set up business performance measures and get only those key indicator reports you need to run your business. Don't waste your time and staff time compiling reports you never use. Know what you need to know to run a successful business, study those reports every month, and use them to take action.
7. Do a human resource compliance audit and stay out of legal trouble. Unless you have a fully staffed HR department, you may not be aware of all of the compliance laws regarding employees. Have an audit done by an outside professional and prevent problems that could result in million-dollar lawsuits by unhappy ex-employees.
8. Know your top 10 customers—what more can you do for them, where can you find more just like them? List your top 10 customers by sales volume and let everyone in your organization know who they are. Are they in a particular geographic region, or a particular type—what is similar about them? Do everything you can to build those relationships.
9. Get a coach or mentor, or join a business support group. Build accountability into your own personal planning by asking others to help you turn your dreams into reality. Enlist people who you can trust to give you objective feedback and create deadlines for your planned successes.
10. Make a list of the year's accomplishments and celebrate your success with your employees. Don't forget to acknowledge and celebrate each of your milestones. The best part of creating a plan is to know when you've reached your goals, allowing some time to pause and appreciate the accomplishment, and begin to create your next set of goals.

From the book Business Plans to Game Plans by Jan B. King, Silver Lake Publishing, May 2000, 362 pgs.

Jan B. King is president and CEO of The King Group, a business planning and strategic people management consulting firm in El Segundo, Calif. www.janbking.com

Free N

Click here to the Free SL
Newsletter.

Current
See Ful
email ti

10. Make a list of the year's accomplishments and celebrate your success with your employees. Don't forget to acknowledge and celebrate each of your milestones. The best part of creating a plan is to know when you've reached your goals, allowing some time to pause and appreciate the accomplishment, and begin to create your next set of goals.

From the book Business Plans to Game Plans by Jan B. King, Silver Lake Publishing, May 2000, 362 pgs.

Jan B. King is president and CEO of The King Group, a business planning and strategic people management consulting firm in El Segundo, Calif. www.janbking.com

Custom Web Site Design & Development
Web Site Hosting & Maintenance
We Future Think Your Technology™

home | search | contact us | subscribe | advertise | editorial | reprints | privacy policy | for PR professionals
Copyright © 2001 Success Online, Inc. All Rights Reserved Terms of Use